

THE WPHF FUNDING WINDOW FOR WOMEN HUMAN RIGHTS DEFENDERS

December 2021

Background

Women Human Rights Defenders (WHRDs) play critical roles during and after conflict, working across the human rights-peace and security-development nexus, at community, national and international levels, often at grave risks to their own lives. Despite their critical contributions, WHRDs face limited access to funding opportunities. While civil society organizations (CSOs) at global, regional, and national levels lead in the protection of human rights defenders, the scarcity of financial resources dedicated to their protection and participation often limits the ability of CSOs to effectively respond to the increasing needs of WHRDs, especially in complex conflict and crisis-affected contexts, which constitute the sites of multiple layers of intersecting needs and insecurities.

A recent open letter from the NGO Working Group on Women Peace and Security, signed by 381 feminist organizations from 88 countries, called Member States and the UN to do more to protect and support WHRDs and to ensure safe spaces for their voices to be heard, noting that “At present, few practical resources are available in urgent, life-threatening individual cases of defenders at risk, and the responsibility of providing protective measures falls largely on other civil society organizations. This represents a critical protection gap that both States and the UN must work with civil society to urgently address.”^[1]

Echoing their voices, in his 2021 annual report on Women Peace and Security, the UN Secretary General called Member States to take concerted action to make “rapid and flexible funding available for the protection of women peacebuilders and human rights defenders in emergency individual cases.”^[2]

Against this backdrop, WPHF has established a new funding window dedicated to support the participation and protection of WHRDs working in and on crisis and conflict settings.

Facts and Figures

- ▶ WHRDs are particularly at risk when they challenge systems linked to violence, such as political power structures, gendered power relations, and patriarchal notions of the role of women in the family and society.
- ▶ WHRDs are at higher risk of experiencing sexual violence and rape, and are targets of femicide, judicial persecution, sexual violence, attacks against their reputations, violence within the home and the organizations where they work, and arbitrary gender-based travel bans.
- ▶ In 2020, OHCHR verified 35 cases of killings of women human rights defenders, journalists, and trade unionists in seven conflict-affected countries with data surpassing the reported numbers for 2019 and 2018.
- ▶ In the month leading up to the August 2021 takeover of Afghanistan by the Taliban, the United Nations had already documented a record number of women killed in the country in 2020, including civil society activists and journalists, and the targeting of academics, medical personnel, and women judges in the Supreme Court, amongst many others.

A New Funding Mechanism: The WPHF Funding Window for Women Human Rights Defenders

Building on existing mechanisms and lessons learned and working in close collaboration with its UN and INGO partners, WPHF approved in September 2021 the establishment of a new funding window to support the protection and participation of WHRDs working for inclusive peace and humanitarian action – The WPHF Funding Window for Women Human Rights Defenders. With seed funding from the governments of Norway and Germany, the new funding mechanism will launch in January 2022. Receiving requests on a rolling basis, the new WPHF window will provide flexible funding and logistical support to Women Human Rights Defenders, in particular women peace activists, from crisis and conflict-affected areas, operating at community, national, regional and/or international levels.

What type of support will the WPHF Funding Window for Women Human Rights Defenders provide?

The WPHF Funding Window for WHRDs will offer two types of support:

- ▶ A flexible funding safety net to cover urgent costs, such as, short-term livelihood and protection expenses, including but not limited to equipment (computers, , security cameras, security software), internet, self care, legal assistance, relocation costs, etc..for up to a 10,000 USD.
- ▶ An advocacy support through direct logistical support to arrange and cover logistical expenses (transportation,visa fees, accommodation, translation,daily subsistence allowance, accessibility for WHRDs with disability) to participate in, either individually or as a delegation, a meeting, event or decision-making process, at the national, regional or international level, which contributes to advancing human rights and peace.
